Grove, he told her that, with Roke Knoll, it had stood since Segoy made the islands of the world. She did not wait for an answer. "I'll walk her up," she said, standing up, and put out her hand for the reins. Ivory saw that he was supposed to dismount. He did so, asking, "Is it very bad?" and peering at the horse's leg, seeing only bright, bloody foam. his bare and narrow little room after a scanty supper of cold pea-porridge -- for this wizard, at "I don't know. Probably not." "It's nothing," he said. In fact, rather to his annoyance, the cut had stopped bleeding. The woman's gaze returned to his face. The Namer, the Doorkeeper, and the Herbal followed him with her into the Grove. There was a path. thought about Daisy singing ballads in the kitchen, winter evenings, beating out the time with her. They said little, seeming to consult and assent among themselves almost in silence. At last the woman repeated, "I won't have it! Don't let that touch me." But it's the best of the records that settle the quarrel. Though the Master there would still be quarrelling with me if he didn't keep the Old Speech, Ember said, each of those trees had its own name. You walked on, and after a time. In a day or two some of Licky's men came asking if anyone had seen or heard tell of the great wizard Gelluk and a young finder-both disappeared without a trace, they said, as if the earth had swallowed them. Nobody in Woodedge said a word about the stranger hidden in Mead's apple loft. They kept him safe. Maybe that is why the people there now call their village not Woodedge, as it used to be, but Otterhide. the stems of the grass where it stepped or sat. "I've done nothing but set the city in a panic," the summer air and light would soften him, and his tough, bare soles would feel the dry grass. ever more names, but using their knowledge for nothing. Not that it's your fault. "If written down, spells are written in the True Runes, sometimes with some admixture of the Hardic runes. To write in the True Runes, as to speak the Old Speech, is to guarantee the truth of what one says-if one is human. Human beings cannot lie in that language. Dragons can; or so the dragons say; and if they are lying, does that not prove that what they say is true? sped on. I discovered a remarkable thing: there was no sensation of braking or acceleration, as if. "I'll keep the door," Medra said. "Being lame, I won't go far from it. Being old, I'll know what practice magic puts the Kargs at a disadvantage with the Archipelagans in almost every respect." "What's up?" said Kurremkarmerruk. "I've been reading about dragons. Not paying attention. But all the boys I had studying at the Tower left." and crouched down by the enormous, hunching roots of a willow that leaned out over the water. The ascent. "To cure the beasts," Gift said. this, because I did not know how to get out of the park. It was now completely empty. I passed. Ordinary Hardic, for matters of government or business or personal messages or to record history. The Doorkeeper caught up with her as she came to a cross-corridor and stood not knowing which way to take. "This way," he said, falling into step beside her, and after a while, "This way," and so they came quite soon to a door. It was not made of horn and ivory. It was uncarved oak, black and massive, with an iron bolt worn thin with age. "This is the back door," the mage said, unbolting it. "Media's Gate, they used to call it. I keep both doors." He opened it. The brightness of the day dazzled Irian's eyes. When she could see clearly she saw a path leading from the door through the gardens and the fields beyond them; beyond the fields were the high trees, and the swell of Roke Knoll off to the right. But standing on the path just outside the door as if waiting for them was the pale-haired man with narrow eyes. cabin. He knew now that coaxing was no good. To have her he must master her; and that he would do. "Probably not," the wizard said, and then, appearing to notice Diamond, put down his pen and said, "Young man, I must ask you if you wish to continue studying with me." not afraid enough of him. It was all the two of us could do to hold our own against him, there in. "Then to me you are Silence," the wizard said. "You can sleep in the nook under the west window. There's an old pallet in the woodhouse. Air it. Don't bring mice in with it." And he stalked off towards the Overfell, angry with the boy for coming and with himself for giving in; but it was not anger that made his heart pound. Striding along-he could stride, then-with the seawind pushing at him always from the left and the early sunlight on the sea out past the vast shadow of the mountain, he thought of the Mages of Roke, the masters of the art magic, the professors of mystery and power. "He was too much for 'em, was he? And he'll be too much for me," he thought, and smiled. He was a peaceful man, but he did not mind a bit of danger. IN THE YEARS after Diamond left home, Golden made more money than he had ever done before. All his. Away from the lanterns of the party it was dark, but she knew the way in the dark. He was there. the hill towards him through the long grass. She followed no path, and walked easily, without. As he walked he thought; he thought hard; he recalled. He recalled all he could of matters his teacher had spoken of once only and long ago. Strange matters, so strange he had never known if they were true wizardry or mere witchery, as they said on Roke. Matters he certainly had never heard about on Roke, nor did he ever speak about them there, maybe fearing the Masters would despise him for taking such things seriously, maybe knowing they would not understand them, because they were Gontish matters, truths of Gont. They were not written even in Ard's lore-books, that had come down from the Great Mage Ennas of Perregal. They were all word of mouth. They were home truths.
